POETRY

THE OLD MAN.

There was an old man whose wrinkles
Were deep.
His nerves were unsteady, his movements
Were slow.
He awoke unrefreshed after troublesome sleep.
His muscles were flabby, his spirit
Low.
He grumbled concerning the twinges He had,
And seldom was seen with a look that Was glad.

He thought that the world was a dreary old place.
Where all men were sinners and nothing was right.
He hobbled along with a frown on his face.
His shoulders were bent and his white hair was thin.
He thought that his troubles were always the worst.
With which any mortal had ever been cured.

He never had praise for others who tried
To help him up the fallen and banish despair.

He was weakened and pallid and water-eyed.
And he looked for a change when the weather was fair.

Thinking no man had sorrows to match with his own.

He never went forth in spring or fall
To walk through the valleys or il-lers in laags.

He gazed from his window upon a gray fog.
His thoughts never far from his sore and his pain.

When others won triumphs, deserving a cheer,
His comment was only a snarl or a sneer.

He was old and decrepit at less than three-score.
Because he was hopeless and cheerless and mean.

Because he had borrowed the life that he bore.
Because he had thoughts that were dark and unkind.

With a heart that was cold and a poisonous tongue.
He was old, very old, when he might have been young.

—S. E. Kiser, in the Chicago Record-Herald.

WHEN WOMEN MEET.

Grace meets Marie and they have tea
And gobble some preserves.
Marie tells Grace, with a dismal face, She's just a Bunch of Nerves.

Poor Grace, Alack, describes her back.
Her weak back and her neck.
There's no relief and she, in brief,
Is quite a Perfect Wreck.

Alas, poor girls, they shake their curls
And tell about their waists;
They fume and frown when they go down
To see the latest clothes.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Uncle Ed—Why, Johnnie, you don't swear, do you? Johnnie—No, I don't swear, but I know all the words—Judge.

"Biggie says he owes everything to his wife." "That isn't true," replied Biggie's father-in-law. "His wife quit leaving him anything years ago, and then he started in owing me."—Washington Star.

"Ala," screamed the oldest girl, "here comes the candidate!" "Mercy! Look the gate, let out the dog, tell the man you're not a candidate and make him show a healthy respect for the law."
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Well, Binsley, have a good tour in your new car?" asked Hickenlooper.
"Pretty good," said Binsley. "How did you find the roads in Maine?" asked Hickenlooper. "By following the ruts," said Binsley. "Harper's Weekly."

Hub (looking up from newspaper)— My dear, have you seen any of these invaluable suits yet? "Invaluable suits?" asked the wife. "What are you talking about?"
Hub—Why, here's a New York ladies' tailor advertising "suits made to order with or without material."—Boston Transcript.

"And what is your occupation?" asked the accident insurance agent.
"I'm a woodsman. During the hunting season I act as a guide." "I'm sorry, but any company won't write a policy on you," said the agent. "Why not?"
"I'm a good risk," said the man. "You're not a risk; you're a certainty."—Detroit Free Press.

First Friend of Victim (quite casually)—Well, old Billy's wife's done done. Convinced that the Crown, I s'pose, when it appeared? Second Friend of Victim—No, 'e wasn't. Don't I keep tellin' yer 'e was just crossin' to the Crown? First Friend of Victim—Well, 'e 'adn't ben in then? Lor, 'ow 'orrible!—London Sketch.

"How did you get rid of that incomprehensible typewriter?" "I guess I told her I did not want to hurt her feelings by disparaging it." "What?"
"Yes, how did you fix it?" "I told her she was altogether too pretty to be working in a public office—and she went away as pleased as could be."— Detroit Free Press.

Tonal—Oh, you was a powerful de-course on Thirt' ye preached the Babbath—Tether—Ahm glad ye were able to 'roft'—Tonal—Front! Why, man, I would have stunk like a pence into the plate w'out a thought it had not been for your providential words—they saved me from there and then!—London Opinion.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE

Japan has more telephones than all the rest of Asia.

A passenger on a German steamer, after trying various remedies for sea-sickness, ate a pancake with (German) crabapples, and found himself promptly cured. All the steamers of that line now have frankfurters and Freschbier on their menu.

Hawaii furnishes the government with the cheapest ice that is applied to the army—11 1/2 cents a hundred pounds—the monthly consumption being 450,000 pounds. In Chicago the army pays 26 cents, and there are posts where it goes as high as 75 cents and 81.

Consul General John L. Griffiths notes that attention was recently called in one of the London newspapers to a statement made by the chairman of the South Metropolitan Gas company of London that during the British coal strike the gas company had purchased coal from Canada, the United States and Germany, and that the coal from across the Atlantic was quite as good as Durham or Northumberland coal.

The land bank has proved a great success. It has from the first made a profit; its advances are in thoroughly good order, which is the more remarkable in view of the financial position of the country. The bank's success is due to a scheme devised for the assistance of old burghers and new immigrants in the Transvaal, and it has resulted in bringing down the rate of interest on mortgages from the exorbitant rates charged after the war to reasonable figures.

An interesting report concerning the Transvaal is given by a British consul at Alexandra, who comments on the arrival from Philadelphia of the Shuman sun-heat absorber, which he says was tested at a hundred degrees, and the plant is being erected at Medun, near Cairo, and will be used to pump water from the Nile to irrigate the surrounding land.
Several improvements have been added to the machine since its arrival.
